Legal expertise for an industry in transformation

Brazil's power industry is one of the most robust and diversified in the world, with a predominantly renewable power matrix and a complex, dynamic regulatory framework. The growing demand for power security, the transition to renewable and low-carbon power sources, the expansion of the free power market, and technological innovation are driving investment and innovation across the entire value chain – from generation to power trading.

In this environment, investors, operators, traders, financiers, and large consumers face regulatory, technical, and commercial challenges that require agile, reliable, and integrated legal solutions. The role of specialized legal counsel is not only to mitigate risks, but also to enable opportunities and consolidate sustainable and efficient business models.

As a full-service law firm, we combine technical expertise, strategic insight, and coordinated action across our key practices – including corporate and financial law, environmental, real estate, and tax – to support clients in every stage of power projects and operations, delivering complete and multidisciplinary legal solutions.
